

OSHA News Alert

On May 17, 2017, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration indefinitely delayed the July 1, 2017 deadline for employers to electronically submit injury and illness data. OSHA's original electronic reporting rule required employers with 250 or more employees, as well as "high risk" industry employers with 20-249 employees, to electronically submit data from their 2016 Form 300A logs to OSHA by July 1, 2017. This data was to be published by OSHA on its website.

However, OSHA has now posted the following statement:

Updated Electronic Submission of Records

OSHA is not accepting electronic submissions of injury and illness logs at this time, and intends to propose extending the July 1, 2017 date by which certain employers are required to submit the information from their completed 2016 Form 300A electronically. Updates will be posted to this webpage when they are available.

OSHA has suspended this deadline in order to investigate employer concerns about meeting their reporting obligations. We will continue to advise you of significant developments. In the meantime, contact Auman, Mahan & Furry with questions regarding your OSHA recordkeeping obligations, as well as any OSHA related matter.

Auman, Mahan & Furry
Experienced Leadership for Continued Success